DESCRIPTION OF THE COLLECTION

Scope and Content Note

The National Alliance of Russian Solidarists (“Народно-Трудовой Союз российских солидаристов” or NTS) was a Russian émigré political organization founded in Belgrade in 1930 by a young generation of exiled Russians. Their goal was to overthrow the Soviet government. During the course of the next 50 years the NTS became the largest and the most active Russian émigré political organization, having its center in Western Germany. The NTS developed a specific political program which defended democratic participation in government. Its platform included an appreciation of human rights and the idea of individual freedom and personal responsibility. The NTS proposed to solve the problem of socialism versus capitalism by articulating an ideology which placed itself “beyond right and left”.

The NTS Collection reflects activities of a less known Institute for the Research of the USSR which was a scholarly branch of the organization. One shouldn't confuse the Institute for the Research of the USSR with the Munich Institute for the Study of the USSR (1950-1971) which for more than twenty years was under the patronage of the CIA.

The NTS collection contains lectures, leaflets, memoirs, proceedings of the two conferences held by the Institute in 1953, stamps and more than 150 photographs depicting well known Russian émigré writers in exile.

It will be of particular interest to scholars studying the history of Russian organizations in exile in the 20th century.
